SUMMERS' PARADE FOR HALLOWE'EN

Gloriously Rabble to be Turned into Fancy Dress Parade with Prize Offered for Best Arrayed Mummer. Band Idea.

Hallowe'en in Gettysburg seems to have become another name for lioness of rough play, often destructive of property and dangerous. A young, enterprising business man of the town, delighting in children, have a very good time, has conceived the idea that the same energy could be put into the great sport for a frolic that would be a wholesome change. This young business man, Allan E. Funk, is pleasantly a new celebrities of the Hallowe'en of 1911. He proposes the great frolic of a summers' parade and will ever whatever expense may attend the same.

He has authorized the offering of a prize of $5 for the most grotesquely arrayed summer participating in parade from start to finish on Hallowe'en, at the school children, college and, as in fact every one who joins in the parade may compete for the prize.

Enforce action will be given later on the point from which the mummers' parade will start. Mr. Funk is arranging for the Citizen's Band and the College Band to take part in the parade. A course will be laid out covering the greater part of the town and so the greatest number may enjoy the fun. People along the line of march may turn out light by help along the spectacle. The most fantastic and grotesque garb will be the aim of every mummer. The parade will wind up in the square with a review before the judges of the summers and the prize will be awarded.

The plans of Mr. Funk are admirable and there is no doubt that children and grown-ups will enter into them enthusiastically to substitute the rough play the great sport of a summers' frolic. Let the children get busy for Hallowe'en in planning grotesque costumes for your ideas going. Fine sport it would be to take a prize for being the best mummer, for giving the best and longest laugh through the town.

The various woman's leagues of Gettysburg college will hold their second meeting on next November 6 and 6. The meeting will be held in Brua Chapel. Everyone is expected to be ready for publication within the next few days.

Gettysburg has a goodly beautified this fall and next spring by the erection of a large number of handsome new homes many of which are now in course of construction.

With Farmers' Day and a Mummers' Parade both within the period of a single week Gettysburg will have lots of excitement. Local citizens will consider favorably both ideas and likely lend hearty support to make them a success.

A number of the members of the cottage foot ball team are out of the game on account of injuries sustained in the contest with Ursinus at Collegeville on Saturday. The team will not likely present its strongest line-up at Emmitsburg on Thursday.

On Monday November 6 the Four Fishers' Stock Company who played here some months ago will return for a week's engagement at the Wizard Theatre. There will be well remembered by local theatre goers as the company which played to capacity houses almost every night of their entire stay.

The news of the attempted assassination of Colonel Roosevelt was heard in Gettysburg on Tuesday with profound regret by people of all political faiths. Details were lacking in the early report and there was much anxiety to get the full story of the occurrence.

OILBERT—BAKER

J. W. Gilbert and Miss Nora (I.) Baker, both of Gettysburg, were married at the reformed parsonage on Saturday evening by Rev. T. J. Barley. They went to housekeeping at once on their new home on Stratton Street. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Baker of Baltimore street, the groom is a son of J. R. Gilbert.

AGENTS: to sell lubricating oils, belts, hose, paint, varnish, to factories, mills, auto owners, stores, threshers, outside large cities; exclusive territory to right party; experience unnecessary but not absolutely necessary. Globe Oil and Grease Co., Cleveland, Ohio.—advertisement.

MINTER CASE IS HELD FOR COURT

N. L. Minter was given a hearing before Squire Harnish Friday afternoon on the charge of selling catsup containing saccharine in violation of the pure food laws of the state. The case was pushed for November term of court after much testimony was heard. The greater portion being that of George L. Walker, state chemist, who examined catsup in question. The hearing was attended by several town merchants together with Mr. Getz, of York, the manufacturer.

Near the end of the hearing the argument proved quite spirited when John D. Keith and William Hersh, the attorneys representing Mr. Minter, requested Dr. Linton, the state agent who purchased the catsup, to allow what remained of the catsup to be left here so that an analysis could made by a chemist representing Mr. Minter. This Mr. Linton refused to do saying that, although he thought it a fair proposition he did not like to take the responsibility upon himself.

Of the original contents of the bottle, which was produced at the hearing, possibly two thirds had been used by the state chemist in his work and the balance remained in the bottle when Mr. Linton refused to give this over to the local attorneys without authority from Mr. Foust, the state dairy and food commissioner, that effect was called by telephone and by in turn refused to grant the request last agreed to leave a state chemist, other than the one who made the original test, and a chemist representing Mr. Minter make a joint test. Dr. S. S. Breidenbaugh, of the college, will be the local chemist if this plan is adopted. The catsup in question was taken back to Harrisburg by the state chemist.

Mr. Linton testified at the hearing that he came to Gettysburg as the agent of the Dairy and Food Department on July 31 and that on the following day he took samples of soft drinks at the National Gas-ol encampment and also purchased the catsup from the Minter store. Information was laid against Mr. Minter after giving him time to produce a guarantee that the stuff came within the provisions of the pure food law.

This provides that if a retailer is found to be selling goods contained in prohibited material and can produce a guarantee from the wholesaler that the goods were within the provisions of the law he is exempt from prosecution but against the small merchant but against the one who mous the original package is held responsible.

Much of the argument over Mr. Linton's testimony was concerning the whereabouts of the catsup after he purchased it. He testified at the first that he had placed it in a jug which he locked and then placed in the trap of his automobile. When the original was sent to the encampment grounds Mr. Later in the afternoon, however, he stated that he recalled more distinctly that he placed the jug with that he had gone to the encampment before he bought the catsup and that he had kept the jug with him all the time until he turned over to the state chemist in the evening. Council for Mr. Minter brought out the following on original testimony to stand, the case should be dismissed as it did not account satisfactorily for the disposition of all the time from the purchase to the time it was delivered to the agent of the state capitol.

Dr. George L. Walker, the state chemist who made the analysis, told at length of the process which he had used and of the finding of the saccharine, an artificial sweetening substance. Counsel for the defendant tried to show that there had not been taken in the analysis to prevent foreign substances from getting into the matter which was being tested.

Mr. Minter testified that the catsup in question was among the goods he had purchased from the Getz Company when he bought out his store.

After hearing the testimony and the argument of both sides Squire Harnish gave his decision, fining the case for trial. The state men were not represented by counsel and Mr. Linton conducted their case.

JURY LIST ERROR

In the list of grand jurors for November court did the name of Amos Davis of Latimore township, should appear instead of that of John S. Beaver.

TWIN CORN

Wallington Brown, of route 13, Gettysburg, has a stalk of corn with 42 well developed ears bearing two sets of corn.

SCOUTS SECURE STAR PITCHERS FOR GIANTS

Al Demaree, Leading Twirler of Southern League.

Combing the underbrush of the minor leagues for pitchers who will be sure on the trail of young pitchers for the New York Nationals. No search is too small to be explored, no tip so humble as to be ignored, and no price too big if the goods are delivered. The two pitchers have been hunting the jungles for many weeks, and now, with drafting days are here, they are springing their traps.

Manager McGraw recently announced the purchase of Pitcher Al Demaree from the Mobile club of the Southern League, and of Pitcher Archer from the Dallas club of the Texas League. Larea Kirby, the Michigan Bearcat, is already on job. Demaree and Seder and some others may show in the fall. But the whole mob will be in Marlin next spring.

STARS AT INITIAL CUSHION

Leading to roars, but already rank as one of the smartest players of the day, is Richard Carlton Mollitad, the heavy port side hitter and able first baseman of the Reds. "Hobby" is only 22 years old, but it a man was asked to pick a better first-sacker, rounding in hitting ability, winning spirit and general disposition, he would be hard pot to find a name to place ahead of that youngster from West Virginia.

Two brief years ago "Hobby" was an unknown quantity. When he reported to the Reds at Atlanta in the spring of 1909 it looked for a time as if he would be beaten for the first base job by Chick Autrey, a left-hander and a player of much more experience than Richard, but, by dint of sticking to his work with tenacity, "Hobby" won out in the fight for the position, and now there is not a club in the league which would not be proud to number him among its regular players.

AROUND THE BASES

Tim Jordan is wanted by the Pittsburg club.

It is said that Joe Jackson, Cleveland's great performer, draws only $3,000.

"Polly" Farrell, the best pitcher of the Fort Worth team, has been sold to Los Angeles.

Thirty-five extra-inning games have been played in the National league this season, 16 in the American.

Charles Murphy is credited with saying: "Give me a fast outfield, any scouts, the better I like my present team."

Pitcher Keefe of the Reds should help Rochester's chances in its race for the flag in the International league.

Claude Rossman and Charlie Carr, a couple of veterans, are fighting for batting supremacy in the American association.

Al Bluefield, who was in a bad way last spring, is playing the game of his life for Montgomery in the South ern league.

Rachel Almeida is acting as scout for the Cincinnati team in the South Atlantic league. Almeida others he has recommended himself.

TRIFLES FOR THE NECK

DAINTY EFFECTS ARE PRETTY IN THE EXTREME.

Innumerable Variety of Styles from Which to Select—For School Use the Simpler Forms Are the Most Desirable.

"Neckwear," said a girl recently, "must have distinction to be correct. This is because neckwear is so lovely now, the girish feelings particularly; because, too, a girl takes as naturally to the pretty things toiletwise used as a duck does to water. She knows that they are peculiarly becoming to her, the various dainty trifles, that they add to her femininity and dress up the plainest frocks.

What a variety of styles there are—flat, deep collars with matching cuffs for the maiden who likes that kind round, soft throat in the best part of her; high choking stocks with frou-frou and lace turnovers; little square reverses, pleated, lace edged and plain; sailor collars of muslin, organdy, set in and baby Irish lace; yards and yards of ruchings of every width and sheen, of net and filmy inexpensive lace for the neck and sleeves and for tiny ruchings or flat folds to catch the ruff that attains the top edge of a high plain blouse.

For school use, the simple flat collar, with matching cuffs, the prevailing stock folds, and the numerous little bows or strings that tie under either a high stock, are mainly to be considered.

The folds, which are sold by the yard, can be made of satin in white or pure white. Cut the fabric bias and make it all up into the folds, one deeper than the other; baste them together and finish the bottom with a band of hair-string ribbon. Good scrim comes about thirty-five cents a yard, but this will make enough collar bands for the whole winter. Finish the inner hit of the white shows above the stock line; but this little ruffle of dark dress prodigiously and keeps the neck of it clean. A neat trick is to cut up the fold, after it is made, into neat lengths, and then keep them neatly in a box until needed.

The sweetest little flat collars and cuffs to match may be evolved from cream chess fabric—batiste, sheer linen in pure white, colored Oriental linen and crepe, net and lawn, Swiss muslin, organdie and net combined. The botchers there is in the flat collar, whether one, rough, durable and laundering better and less time. The style of it look well when scalloped round the edges, with a little fine and single buttonhole, done with linen embroidery floss. Some of the latter white sets the girl might also want to wear with contrasting cuffs and collar, but it entirely outside the cost neck and leaves the horse of the throat open, being without the finish band, which is the most difficult and tiresome part of inside of the coat. One style of plain set, with scalloped edges, is a piece of narrowest black baby velvet round the collar and the cuffs, with the ruffling edging below the. The pretty fineries are fastened in with small safety pins.

Anything can be copied if you set to work with the utmost neatness. Nothing looks more slovenly than a tie too small. But then, considering the prettiness of the finished product they are cheap enough. One store is showing Schaeffgen's Sunset, a very good serviceable cloth material of a cheap sort for seventy-five cents, and the same is plaited linen or set with lace edge, lapped over imitation linen, and a velvet ribbon with blue ends, are forty-nine cents. Another is a white organdy set, finished off with the shallow ruffle that looks like lace, and is put in place, are twenty-five cents.

FUTILE ATTEMPT TO END HIS LIFE

Cornelius Reed, a well known resident of Freedom township, attempted to take his life about 8:30 o'clock Monday when he shot himself in the head, the bullet entering the scalp above the right temple and passing around which is not expected to prove serious, Worry over financial difficulties is said to have caused his act.

Mr. Reed has been ailed about fifty years, has been worrying greatly for the past few days over some financial troubles and had been in great distress. This morning he walked out to the barnyard and went down to the orchard where, a few minutes later, he fired the shot which he hoped would end his life. Mrs. Reed heard the report of the revolver and rushed to his assistance and found him in the act of attempt at self destruction Doctor Hesson and Sheriff Fairfield responded immediately.

After Mr. Reed was carried into the house he protested that he did not want to live and that his great desire was to die.

Mr. Reed is about fifty years of age and his wife has no less than children one of whom is living at home and the other two in Waynesboro. He resides on the old Reed farm about three miles east of Mills from Fairfield.

BIG SHELLBARK BUSINESS

C. H. Hockensmith of Mount Berlin the largest dealer in shellbarks in this section is making preparations for the handling of this season's crop of nuts. He has placed an advertisement in several of the city newspapers and during for 1,000 bushels of shellbarks for the first shipment of the season. The nuts will arrive from Chicago next Monday. The purchases are that the crop of nuts in this section of the state will be considerably less than in other years.

Mr. Spahr has been engaged in the shellbark business the past 15 years having lived in East Berlin, prior to moving to York, where he carried on the business for 11 years. For the past several years he has engaged in the industry on an extensive scale and has made larger shipments of hickories to the markets of the east than any other. Last year he handled and hulled 1,000 bushels of shellbarks.

A large quantity of the nuts are purchased from farmers in Adams and York and Adams counties, while the greater bulk is shipped from Chicago. These nuts are gathered throughout the western and southwestern part of the United States. They are sent in barrels, averaging about four bushels to a barrel. The four shipments will consist of about a carload. From the car the nuts are delivered to the packers throughout the city. Hundreds of persons are engaged in picking kernels each season. A family of six or eight persons can pick the kernels from ten thousand pounds of nuts in four days. Other families will take the work,or more to the work. The pickers are paid 12 cents a pound for their work. A basket of shellbarks will average, 10 or 12 pounds of kernels.

TOWN TO MAINTAIN THE PLAYGROUND

Methods of Providing for Care of the Playground are Discussed by Parent Teachers' Association, Other Business.

The question of the maintenance and care of the public playground which has been established this summer by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kurtz, Philadelphia, was the subject of discussion at the meeting of the Parent Teachers' Association of the High School building on Friday evening. The donors of the playground expect that the town is the owner of the plot after they have fully equipped it, built a lodge for the superintendent and so on. Estimates of the annual cost of maintaining the place run from $500 up to $700 or $800

It had been suggested by Mr. Kurtz that for the present it be given into the care of an athletic club or some like organization and that a charge of the grounds save town care of until things were ready to be turned over to some other governing board. The assistment at Friday evening's meeting was against this action as it was feared that under such management the club rooms of the lodge might lose their sanitary about using it. No definite action has been taken but it was voted to have a plan to play. The fact that the Playground is open to the public and none no playgrounds has always been looked upon as a charity case is a representative of the State Department of Public Instruction when they visited Gettysburg.

The high school inspector here this week suggested that if a playground as it might be possible to not apart a small piece of the lot for a community truck for school gardens,giving a number of pupils small tracts where they might raise vegetables.

The high school boys are already using the site for their baseball games and, it is said, boys can be found there almost any time of the day on which days are not in school. Friday evening's meeting passed a resolution of appreciation to the donors.

The entertainment part of the program consisted of a piano solo by Miss J. B. Baker, a recitation by Miss Lillian Hoffman and a reading by Miss Rose Miller and a reading by Miss Ruth Hamilton.

Those who attended Friday evening's meeting visitor the manual training room and saw the work of the Twenty benches have been installed and the boys are taking to the course with enthusiasm. Basketball is now a topic and the boys are talking to the course with enthusiasm. Basketball is now a topic on the rain every afternoon except Friday from 3.30 to 4.45 and the people of the town are invited to visit the department at any time

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Fitt

Grain raising robs the soil.

Never overfeed an idle horse.

Filthy houses encourage vermin.

Keep the old and young pigs separate.

Kerosene is an excellent remedy for scaly leg.

The silo is the cheaper farm building we can erect.

Better too much worship of farmers than not enough.

It requires a keen sight to detect signs of failing pasture.

It is absolutely necessary to keep your fertility on your farm.

Wheat and oats make one of the best general rules for fowls.

In mixed farming the income from the dairy is the most reliable.

Comfortable shelter goes a long way towards making dairying pay.

Cultivate vegetables and flowers when the weather is hot and the soil is dry.

It is not uncommon for a Bermuda lily grower to plant 15,000 bulbs at one time.

An old bootleg makes an effective device for keeping bottles of horned cows.

The horse cannot rest while fighting flies. Better shade or screen the barn windows.

For spots on sweet peas, use tobacco powder or tobacco dust, applying with a small bellows.

To secure a good bread sow, an even development is required from pig brood to full maturity.

STATE MOTHERS MEETING HERE

The thirteenth annual meeting and child welfare conference of the Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers opened on Thursday evening in St. James chapel with a large audience present from nearby sections of the state. A small number of delegates were present at all of the opening session.

Rev. J. H. Baker made the opening prayer and Prof. W. A. Burgoon gave the address of welcome in which he said that, of all the organizations which hold their gatherings here from time to time, he did not believe any of had higher aims and purposes than the Congress of Mothers. Miss Maud Miller, secretary of the local Parent-Teachers' Association read greetings from the latter body. Mrs. Will M. Bolligans, and Mrs. George K. Johnson, president of the Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers, made the response. Miss Miller sings a solo.

The principal address of the evening was by Dr. Jane Bolton, of Swarthmore College, whose subject was "Education for Righteousness, Its Aims and Methods." Dr. Holmes endeavored to show that the channels which have been brought about in recent years have yet the chance, the home and the school in different relation to each other than in former years and that not one of these institutions had yet adapted itself to the changed conditions.

A letter was read from Rev. F. Dougherty in reply to an invitation sent him to attend the meeting. He expressed his hearty approval of the motives of the Congress of Mothers and asked that he be excused visit the parochial schools during their stay here and that, if possible, one of their number should make an address to the children there. At morning the business of the session was taken up and the reports of officers, delegates and committees were heard. The luncheon was resumed at the afternoon session in the Ward Theater at which time an illustrated address was given by Mrs. Rose Lockwood, president of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and second agent of the Department of Good Reads Washington, D. C. Mrs. Rowe gave an address on "The Four Cornerstones of the New Country Life".

While the business side of the convention is occupying much of the time a number of informal social features were arranged by local members in charge of entertainment. On Thursday afternoon a reception was held at Hi Gol Gettysburg, the seventeen hundred visitors. This was at the school and on Friday from one to two o'clock an automobile ride about town was given the visiting delegates through the courtesy of the automobile owners of the town. Battlefield trips will be taken on Saturday.

STATE HUNTERS ARE GUNNED

Early in October 195 an e name have been added to the membership r ga Hunters' and Anglers' Associatio of Pennsylvania, making a total o now over 3,000

Up to the beginning of October more than twelve hundred petitions, favo ring amendments to the game laws, w re sent over the state and as many more will be distributed as soon as they can be prepared.

The principal point set out in the petition is the opposition to the payment of the $1 license fee. This, the hunters declare, would be a hardship. One petitioner suggested that the hunters are to allow the killing of both sexes of deer, allowing a party of three men to kill three, one each. In case there are four men in the party, then the club must suggest that a time limit be fixed, at the same time naming three or five as the buyers.

Then hunters also urge the passage of legislation providing for an appropriation to pay bounty for noxious birds and predatory animals. The present laws set out that money shall be paid to procure killing birds and animals in these classes, although there is no appropriation and the hunter gets nothing. Also other suggestion is to prohibit the sale of game.

THEBLOOD'S TAX ON WEED

Students preparing for the Lutheran ministry at the request of the church are forbidden to use tobacco in any form, according to a resolution adopted by the West Pennsylvania synod, which in holding its annual session in York it was decided to collect a study from the endowment of these beneficiaries of the church who use tobacco or chew

A sixteen year investigated in the educational committee's report, protesting against Lutheran congregations which have enough money to educate their young men for the ministry, yet appeal to the Synod for funds

The synod selected St. James' Lutheran Church, Gettysburg, as the place for the next meeting.

PLANK TWIRLS 12 INNING GAME

After 12 innings, in which neither side was able to score, the game between Hanover and the Southern County semi-pro team, played Thursday over Friday afternoon, was called on account of darkness. The battle was between Paris Kunkel, who has been the mainstay of the Independents all season, and "Eddie" Plank, the Athletic southpaw.

Plank's work was up to its usual standard and there is hardly a doubt but that he would have piloted to his game if he would have been able to let out. The four hits were made in four different innings and came when Plank eased up to give his catcher time to rest. Plank had the situation in hand at all stages and did not issue a pass. He retired the side in the ninth on nine pinched balls. Small reckoned himself for a sitting off four of the five Independent players who got on base and who attempted to steal.

GETTYSBURG 7, MT. ST. MARY'S 0

Before a large crowd of enthusiastic rooters Gettysburg defeated Mount St. Mary's at Emmitsburg on Thursday afternoon by the score of 7 to 0. Gettysburg's touchdown was made in the second period on straight foot ball by which the ball was carried from mid-field over the goal line. Gettysburg had several other good chances to score, once when Leathers ran almost the entire length of the field but was called back for stepping out of bounds and another time when Schaffer had a clear field but fumbled. Mount St. Mary's had only one chance to score. They got the ball first down on Gettysburg's five yard line, but could not put it over. Leathers was a sure ground gainer and the entire team put up a fine article of foot ball.

GIRARD COLLEGE BOYS HERE

To in any way skrimp the food of a growing animal, cattle, chickens, lamb, hogs or colt, is to invite sure loss in thrifty, growing young animal, if such thing is done there is always a money maker.

Never introduce a new bird into the poultry yard until it has been duly quarantined. Keep it alone for a week and note its appearance, appetite, etc. Disease is often introduced into a flock by the purchase of new birds.

The capacity of the silo must be judged according to the number of animals you intend to feed each day. The diameter is the principal thing to watch because of the fact that a feeding allows we must feed a certain layer of silage off each day or it will begin to spoil.

The fellow who thinks that the ownership of a horse, cow or other animal or vice versa will unite the good qualities of both in the offspring does not think of the chances of uniting the poor qualities. Just the thing often happens, so we would advise at all times against taking chances. Stick to dairy type.

STRONG PLAYS TO BE FEATURE

"The Pilgrimage" and "Two Thousand Miles for a Book" at Baltimore.

"The Pilgrimage," an Arabian play, by Percy Mackaye, and "Two Thousand Miles for a Book," an American Indian drama, will be given at the Maryland Play Hall of "The World in Baltimore," by the Arts Club from October 27 to November 30, at the Lytle theatre, Baltimore Both of these plays are unusual, depending many participations, the requirement of which for both being three hundred and fifty.

Beautiful incidental music will accompany these plays, the word over, but I, the Lord, am with you to the end in one, and mystical Oriental strains predominating. Here are scenes

The scene of "The Pilgrimage" is laid at Mecca, the city of the Orient, at the time when the whole Moslem world journeys to the place of pilgrimage to the tomb of Mohammed. The pageantry includes the procession and the confession to Christianity of several outlaws, especially that of a young Mohammedan student of high caste, Hassan Ben Ali, and his companions, who have been working in Jiddah. Several gypsy-like characters are encountered through the attitude of the Sheik to the Missionaries and their friends. The acknowledgment of a young convertion to Christianity is made by his companions in the form of a farewell dance, whose wife, a princess of high birth, finds herself in sacrificing all her to traditions and religion, and joins with the rest in their rejoices, for the sake of The Book.

The wonderful tenginss for the Book, "Two Thousand Miles for a Book," is demonstrated in the play which bears that name. It is a play in which, in 1838 a delegation of American Indians went from the Oregon country to St. Louis for "The Book," which, before journeying, made a present who had passed their way.

Several other plays, lasting somewhat less than an hour each, will also be given. In "Sun-Light or Candle Light" the scene is laid in Japan; "Primitive Day" takes one to the mysshine district of 'our own country;

Tarti and Temple, Japan Scene, "The World in Baltimore."

China is the scene of "Chinese-Girl and Slave Girl;" "Kookl" is located in Korea, and "Land of Sunshine" is found in Africa. The best talent obtainable for the production of these plays, which are short enough to be also given in vaudeville, is engaged, it is announced. Motion pictures, the best obtainable, and the finest possible in secure, will be shown. These rare pictures for the most part have been taken by special representatives for missionary societies especially in the countries where the scenes have been laid.

BALTIMOREANS FINANCE MISSIONARY EXHIBITION

"The World in Baltimore" Exposition, which will be opened in the Lyric theatre and Lyric auditorium, Baltimore, Md., from October 25 to November 30, is under the management of committees of Baltimore men and women, and the entire production, who have provided a guarantee fund of more than $100,000 for the exposition. It is hoped that the receipts from the show will be such as to be asked to pay, will enable all expenses to be met, and any money advanced by the guarantors to be returned. Should a profit result after this has been done, it will be turned over to the Interdenominational Movement for the extension of missionary education in the United States.

SPECIAL BUILDING ERECTED

No public hall in Baltimore was large enough for the Exposition, "The World in Baltimore," to be held there Consequently a special hall in a second hall was built for the purpose. This hall will be in the rear of the Lyric, the Lyric theatre will be used for the pageant, plays, etc.

A RESTAURANT FOR USE OF THE VISITORS.

A well equipped restaurant under the management of one of the best caterers in Baltimore, where meals and refreshments may be obtained by visitors at fair prices, will be maintained at "The World in Baltimore" Exposition, October 25 to November 30, it is announced. That the feature will add no little to the pleasure of those who attend.

MEN OF THE FIRST REPUBLIC

Type of the Soldiers With Whom the Great Napoleon Swept All Europe.

Another contribution to "Napoleoniana" is the collection of memoirs and letters of the army surgeon, Baron Desgenettes, who was with the Egyptian expedition. One day he found a Mameluke lieutenant asleep in the sand in the desert of Beni-Soueff. "Wake up, Eugene, wake up! This man's not dead yet. Here are your orders and profession. A man of war must, by his wits, be ready for anything." On another occasion Napoleon had condemned several men to be executed to death for looting and murder. His self-made judge, Desgenettes, had a worth quoting:

"Type of the soldiers with whom the great Napoleon swept all Europe. Ragged, dirty, with the remnant of a cocked hat worn in color. Soiled, it is true, but ready to brush up and collapse. Eaten, there is little nourishment and that worn to it."

Lady the Painter.

Sir William Lely had agreed for the price of a portrait he was to draw or her rich London aldermas, who was not indebted to nature either for shape or face. The picture being finished, the alderman's wife refused to boot down the price, saying that if he did not purchase it it would remain on the painter's hands.

"That's a matter," said Sir William, "for I can sell it at double the price I demand."

"How can that be?" says the alderman, "for it is not like me at all."

"True," replied Sir William, "but I will draw a tail to it and it will be by a capital monkey."

The alderman's nose paid down the money demanded and carried off the picture.

Automobile Artillery.

Efforts are being made by the powers to obtain the most effective automobile to the transportation of field artillery. It has been pointed out that the idea of a self-moving gun carriage for field artillery was suggested as early as the year 1769 by the engineer, Cugnot, and in recent efforts are principally directed to the perfection of a form of automobile suitable to take the place of horses in drawing the artillery. Several years ago Germany introduced automobiles, carrying light guns, but these have never been extensively, with more or less success, but it is said the latest model to adapt the automobile to the transportation of guns mounted, as at present, on horse carriages.

Nature's Sun Dial.

There is no need for clocks on the Azores or any day in which the sun is shining. There nature does not vary, though the centuries go by. The natural time-marker is the largest sun dial in the world. Projecting from the silo waters of the sea is a large pro montory, which has been cut flat to the shore the waves. As the sun swings round the heavens it casts over it the mountain just touches one after the other of a number of small islands, which are at exact distances apart so that we can tell the time.

Mrs. Murphy's Idea.

Then were two suitors after Mary Ann Brogan, the pretty little grocery O'Flaherty, whom her father and mother encouraged urged her to accept, and the other was schoolmaster Flanagan. Mary, herself, favored the latter and married him despite all her father and mother could say against it.

One day after she was settled in her new home she came down to see her parents and established a new good news, her husband had given her.

"Ah!" said her mother disapprovingly. "If ye took my device and married Patrick Mary Flanagan, the good watch ye'd be havin' in yer pocket, but a good eight-day clock."—Tit-Bits.

Is Dreamy.

"I know Charley enjoyed being a delegate at the convention." said Miss Cayenne.

"How?"

"I heard him talking in his sleep, and some of the language he used was positively startling. I think he was a filibuster at a baseball game."

SURPRISE PARTY

On Saturday evening a very pleasant surprise party took place at the home of Miss Rosie Kelly, on York street. The evening was spent in playing many different kinds of games. At an appropriate hour the merrymakers surrounded a table well laden with refreshments and therefrom partook of the same. One of the features of the evening was the selection for partners. Mr. Wilson received 15 votes; Mr. Roosevelt 7 votes; and Mr. Taft 3 votes. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Kelly, Misses Louise Bender, Mary Bender, Caroline Bender, Sara Hartley, Lillian Kitzmiller, Anna Hartley, Messrs. Oil. Bergerstock Orl. Bates Pfeifer, Marion Plank, Edith Shealy, Mowrer Milton Bender, David Hartley, Jesse Hartley, Wilmer Hart, of Hanover, William Kauffman, Franklin Kelly, Hadley Lepp, Harold Mumper, Fred Pfeifer, and William Wenrow.

CLAIM ROBBERY

Uniform defeated the Gettysburg College ball team at Collegeville on Saturday by the one-sided score of 10 to 0. Harold Sipe made fifty of Gettysburg's only scores when he picked up a fumble and twenty yards later put a touch down. The Gettysburg boys claim the rainbow had no interest at the bank of incompetent officials but four of the test men disqualified and the team badly crippled. The decisions and decisions contrary to rules caused the team to leave the field during the game but they were persuaded to remain by "Jimmy" James, a former Gettysburg captain who happened to be there to see the contest. Saturday's experiences may result in the severance of athletic relations with the Collegeville institution.

The scrubs played well but were defeated by the Hanoverian scores team 5 to 0 at Mercersburg.

CARRIED TROUBLE

Two men from Jacks Mountain were arrested by Chief Kline in this town on Friday for drunkenness and disorderly conduct and placed in the lockup and were taken before Burgess John A. Shisely in the evening. After the hearing they were given a severe reprimand and ordered to leave town. They came here to Hellam town, where one of them got into an argument with Constable Groft, who was officiating as one some muscular strength in placing him in the village bastile.

ANOTHER FINE AIRSHIP FLIGHT

Fairbreeh Eells, the Rochester aviator was in town in Gettysburg today, and by his work, expert handling of airplanes and a large number of amateur observers, gave the people of the town an interesting afternoon. It was the first flight over the town and a portion of the battlefield. He was in the air about 15 minutes, minutes and would have stayed up much longer but was compelled to come down because of the approaching storm which broke a few minutes after he had glided to earth.

A large number of people congregated along Long Lane early in the afternoon to witness the flight but a strong wind blew at intervals until about 4 o'clock and four when Mr. Eells and his men felt that a flight could be undertaken with safety. The people gathering storm was noticed with some concern and the crowd reckoned well and felt that he could not get across a short exhibition before the world he caught.

The engine of the large biplane was in best tune and every bolt and nut will be readjusted that Aviator Eells may be in no danger. It got up from the worn before he started on his 40 field flight in July and the Eells to that fast. Mr. Eells definitely took many flights in his experience but he has been flying will ever since.

Had to return to the starting flight of Saturday, when the engine had been tried out Mr. Eells mounted the seat and in a few minutes had for a couple of nothing more than a folded roads and a long log. The engine was started and in a moment the machine was racing down the field with a few hundred yards from the place of starting the long biplane began to leave the ground and in a few moments was above it until it was about two hundred feet high.

Mr. Eells directed his course almost straight south and went out the Emmitsburg road as far as Round Top. Circled where he turned slowly and headed back over the battlefield of the Confederate avenue. He passed over the western section of the field and over the stone avenue grounds where he turned on his return flight and in a few minutes was over the town.

The crowd assembled there watched his intensely as he sculptured toward the earth. He shut off the power and began to glide rapidly toward the ground and then glided gracefully until landing in a cow pasture without difficulty and almost at the very spot from which he had started. He was given over to his outward trip. The people assembled gave the hearty handclap as he passed from his seat and a bunch of college boys gave him a cheer. He was pleased by both demonstrations and walked to his tent as though he had been taking a walk for his exercise and he was deserving of no special demonstration. He was in the best of spirits today.

The flight was watched keenly by the people of Gettysburg and persons of the county who had come in for the event. Some even went to the re-fields to watch the course of the aviator and the machine and some was disappointed that the flight was not longer. Over 5000 Topics excursionists in town today. Every automobile owner in Gettysburg is to be reared over town. Some of the were almost disappointed that the flight was not longer. Allowed west of the Reading station but failed to notice it.

Mr. Eells has had many years of experience. He says that of the large number of aeroplanes that he has seen with him several years ago only six are now at it, other having stopped for one reason or another. He has been in many mishaps and has received a number of injuries but is always accepted without a broken bone. His attributes his success and comparative freedom from serious trouble to two facts, the first of which is that he has had considerable training in going up when conditions are unfavorable and the second reason given is that he does not become excited easily and is cool in the face of sudden emergency.

He has been a decided success here and Gettysburg will welcome him gladly his return at any time in the future. He is accompanied by his two mechanicians and his manager, Mr. Van Nase, who built the machine.

PLEASED SMALL AUDIENCE

A small audience heard an exceedingly good concert by the college glee club on Saturday evening. A varied program was given and there were a number of specialty and encored solos. It was most unfortunate that the college musicians should have large crowd to enjoy their efforts.

EXHIBITS ARE SHOWN FROM MANY CLIMES

"The World in Baltimore" will be the title of the exposition on a world-wide scale to be held in the United States from October 31 to November 30, 1912 it will occupy the Light, Theatre and a specially constructed hall in Baltimore.

Education and inspiration are the objects of the exposition. It has been organized under the auspices and assent of committees of Baltimore and other cities standing and organization, who have provided a guarantee fund of more than $50,000 to be made shows and rooms from Japan and Korea.

The China scene will have its tall round Pagoda, its temple shrines and its native homes. In Korea there will be a farmhouse and its surroundings, with a peculiar wayside shrine and its guardian. There will be also an Indian village, made up of a Sioux Teepee and a Bengali Zemana, a Bedouin of sheep, the Towers of Silence and a Monkey Shrine. An African village will have its huts, native utensils and its schoolhouse and factory. In the section devoted to Mohammedanism, Arabs, while visiting other through the Damascus gate, will see a rich man's house, a harem, a Turkish Khan and a Bedouin tent. Scenes which the world see if you visited Arabia and Persia, with the kind of shops you would find in a Turkish city, will also be a part of the exhibition in the pavilion.

Our part of the Exposition will be filled with sections and scenes representing the Indian, Negro and Spanish of the United States. The visitor will first enter a large hall where there will be represented the life of the American Indian and the Kalimo of Alaska and the results of the Indian schools. In this section Indians will have all of the character istics of a tribal encampment as they exist in the north-west. Another impressive picture will be that of the Spanish Illustrated in the Frontier Missions in the south-west and Mexico in the mountains.

One of the most interesting features among immigrants at the Ellis Island Immigration Station in New York Harbor. Splendid results in the Philippines, in Porto Rico and Cuba, of developing the religious life of the people, will also be illustrated in a most interesting way.

The exposition will present, both of the foreign lands and the home lands, conditions as they exist in the country, interpreting to visitors the meaning of the movements. The scope will be as army of 6,000 stewards and churches of Baltimore. These will be prepared to answer the questions of visitors by weeks of study from appropriate textbooks. Nearly all will wear the costumes of the scenes to which they are assigned, and they will serve to relate, at that at all times there will be a sufficient number on duty to give life, character and color to the exposition.

SIXTY MISSIONARIES WILL PARTICIPATE

A large number of leading missionaries from all parts of the world are to be in Baltimore during "The World in Baltimore" Exposition, which will be held October 31 to November 30. They will take a prominent part in

WILL WAIT FOR NEW STATE LAW

Water Supply Commission Holds Up All Charter Grants

Water Conservation Association Preparing Bills For State Control of Water Resources—Restrictions Are Placed in Further Charters.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 17.—In order that the Water Conservation Association of Pennsylvania and the Water Commission of Pittsburgh and other organizations having for their object the conservation and wise use of the water resources may have time in which to prepare and present proposed laws for governing these questions the State Water Supply Commission has announced that no more charters for the construction of reservoirs shall be granted between now and the convening of the legislature. This will enable those interested in this subject to present bills dealing with it and give the legislature an opportunity to pass upon them.

The Water Supply Commission has the granting of charters within its jurisdiction but the charters limited. The Water Conservation Association and Flood Commission have requested that two should be extended and also acted in the meantime. Mr. Ross [illegible] without the state to secure [illegible] and the commission has agreed [illegible] to deciding to hold up charter [illegible] Commissioners Water Supply Commissioners in the effect of the Flood Commission and other bodies placed certain restrictions in charters they granted in order to better protect the interests of the people. These restrictions are as follows:

"That within twelve months after the filing of maps or letters patent there shall be presented to the Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania through Commissioners a plan showing the following data. An accurate map of the area included in each dam, with contours sufficient to calculate the capacities of reservoirs for various depths, also revised data concerning water powers, flow, pondage, storage and the effect upon them by each dam or reservoir, together with the extent to which the respective dams will affect the natural low stream flow, as the Clarion and Allegheny rivers.

"That the requirements of the corps of engineers, United States Army, in charge of the Allegheny river, as to the maximum size of reservoirs, shall be embodied in any plan for using the Allegheny river as a feeder for the lower riparian owners to have available for their use the water from the upper stream flow, as determined by the Water Supply Commission, and that Atlantic coast be protected.

"That the operation of reservoirs in the interest of low water and the maintenance of low water flow shall be conducted subject to the direction and jurisdiction of the Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania.

"That this charter shall not go into effect until the consent of letters patent by the Governor of the Commonwealth."

LENDS ITS AID TO GET RESULTS

Flood Commission Supports the Water Conservationists

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 28.—That the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh is actively interested in the plans of the Water Conservation Association of Pennsylvania was made clear at a meeting yesterday with W. M. Jacoby, executive secretary of the Flood Commission. The object of the new association hopes to solve the water problem by preventing floods and at the same time create a water power in the state.

"The Flood Commission is cooperating with the Water Conservation Association," said Mr. Jacoby. "The purpose of creating the commission was to see what means can be taken to conserve the water resources of the Pittsburgh district floods and improve navigation conditions.

"In no other state are conditions as favorable as in the state of control of the water supply, both from the standpoint of navigation and from the prevention of destructive damages from freshets. Floods during the January precipitation over this area the rivers and streams throughout the state of Pennsylvania are subject to more extreme fluctuations than in any other state in the union. Floods have been practically all removed from the Ohio river and tributary rivers in the state this great downfall of water would run off, except at times of some excessive floods and conditions which would prevail, without injury to individual property owners and to cities and towns, if it were not for a remedy.

"In former days the control of these streams was better than at present. Before the passing of the timber these streams were protected by forests with dams which tended to hold water in the mountains regions. These dams have largely disappeared, with the result that the absence of any control the waters are allowed to flow unrestricted.

"Taking a single instance, that of the Monongahela river, it is a practice show that over a period of twenty years the Monongahela river has had at extreme high water approximate $1,000,000 each year. The value of the manufacturers of this river for navigation and power purposes is not less than a million and recurrently but doubtless represents an underestimate.

"In the western part of the state conditions are not so favorable, but the steadily increasing damages due from floods is a matter for the consideration of the Flood Commission. We have investigated the conditions in this section and are able to present plans for this section of the state for preventing floods and for improving the navigation and power. In developing the quality of water in the Monongahela river is comparatively small compared to the enormous flow during freshets. Investigation has found that floods are continually increasing in frequency and that they are successively estimates that the damage from the flood damage at Pittsburgh alone will amount to $40,000,000 in the next thirty years. Any information interest in this section are cooperating in the interests of the Flood Commission.

"While the intention of those interested in the Water Conservation Association is primarily to bring about the enactment of laws at the next session of the legislature to give the most broadest powers to cope with the water question. We believe that a law can be the costly floods be prevented, but that the water that does run to waste can be turned into a real asset to the state."

FARMERS' DAY ON OCTOBER 26

Big Event with Several Bands, Numerous Premiums and Other Attractions Booked for Saturday of Next Week.

Saturday, October 26, will be observed as Gettysburg's first Farmers' Day, this decision having been reached by practically a unanimous vote at the meeting of the business men of the town in the Southern Hotel on Monday evening, and every effort will now be put forth to make the event a big success.

As an indication of how business men of Gettysburg view the proposed affair C. S. Rosser has decided to give the entire time at both the local furniture factories a half holiday. The combined force now consists of over two hundred men. In addition to this one of the premiums will also be given by these companies.

It is planned to have a number of bands here for the day. They will all be located in various parts of the business section of town and there will be plenty of music for the hundreds who are expected to spend the day here. Contests will be held in the Centre Square for various prizes and the day ends one of the biggest events which Gettysburg has yet had with out bringing in visitors from outside of the county.

Wm. Arch McClean was chosen president of the "Farmers' Day new deal" last week and on Tuesday evening George Hoke was elected vice-president, secretary and treasurer. Pearson Myers was appointed on select funds to secure funds from a distance and meet other expenses. H. W. Widder was appointed to interview the local business men concerning the prizes they intend to give and the articles for exhibit they will be given. Mr. McClean was given authority to appoint a committee to select three judges to inspect the premises, and to provide for other details of the program.

Among the things for which prizes will be offered will be the best display of apples, the finest lot of potatoes, largest ear of corn, tallest corn stalk, best lot of husked corn and so on, taking in all the vegetables and grains which may now be displayed. A full list of the premiums and the articles to be entered will be published within the next day or two so that farmers may get ready their exhibits.

The farmers' wives will also have an opportunity to show their skill for prizes will be offered for the best pie, the finest layer cake and so on. All entries remain the property of their original owners and will be removed immediately after the display is declared closed, late in the afternoon of Farmers' Day.

There will be no conditions of entering the various exhibits other than the time. They must be brought to Gettysburg on the day before Farmers' Day or not later than nine o'clock of the morning of the big day. The articles will be put on display by the various merchants in their stores and by others in their places of business. For instance, if The Times were to offer a prize for the finest containing the six finest Irish potatoes, all those wishing to enter for that prize would bring their potatoes to this office to have them arranged. Visitors viewing the displays will go from one place to another.

It is the plan to select judges from various parts of the county and the premium awards will be made as soon as possible after the entries are all in on Farmers' Day morning, so that the people can compare their own pick and luck with those of the jud

Practically every business place in town has decided to offer one or more premiums and the prizes are such as to be worth working for. From the interest being taken in the county it is very probable that Adams County's finest fruits, vegetables, grains, cakes and pies will be on display in Gettysburg, October 26, and with plenty of music and fun to enliven the occasion the event should prove one rousing success as Gettysburg's first Farmers' Day.

BUILT FIRE IN JAIL

Oliver Emmons in his night rounds put in the town took up, one negro, name unknown, for drunk and disorderly conduct. Some hours later he found a large volume of smoke pouring out the vicinity of East Middle and Baltimore streets. Investigation showed it to be issuing from the jail and when the main door was opened volumes of smoke poured out. The prisoner had built a fire of newspapers on the wooden floor. It was about burned out when discovered and no serious damage was done. Just what would have happened to the prisoner, locked behind two iron doors, if the fire had gotten control, is not pleasant to imagine.

PLANTS FLAGS ON TOWN PAVEMENT

The old fashioned pole argument with a man standing on the site the company desired, was enacted on Centre Square Monday afternoon in the presence of a large and interested crowd when Attorney Dougherty protested against the removal of a Bell telephone pole from the pavement to a place on the pavement at the corner of the Dougherty and Hartley store.

Mr. Dougherty took his stand on the proposed location of the pole after one of the linemen had removed several drilling blows on the concrete pavement with a large sledge hammer. He remained there for a half hour or more finally inviting the plant protected by the large American flags.

Chauncey Zeigler with a large gang of men arrived on the scene in due time to take three large poles out of the roadway in the Square and place them at the proper location. They acted in front of the Dougherty and Hartley store, another in front of the Wills building at the Stallsmith arms and another on the Diehl lot on East Locust st. on the Slaughter corner The first two were the only places where any attempt was made to carry out the intentions of the telephone people to place the poles on the pavement. Upon going, conferred with William F. Wills, who happened to be present and a matter upon his arrival in town this morning, and claims that Mr. Colebert has given the order for the poles to be put where they were placed by the Dougherty and Hartley interests. Mr. Wills, being the owner of the property, objected to the location of the poles on the pavement and refused to allow the workmen to proceed.

When Mr. Wills left the men and after this warning, was issued, however, Mr. Dougherty and Mr. Zeigler engaged in a heated argument.

"I'll stay here all day to keep that pole from being placed on the pavement," said Mr. Dougherty.

"You'll have to have your meals served here, then," replied Mr. Zeigler with a smile.

"Well this is private property", rejoined the merchant "and you have no right to bring your poles in on our property. You won't do it."

"You'd better get a cot to spend the night then if you intend to stay over night", answered Mr. Zeigler.

A discussion of equally talkative editions ensued, followed and just to what extent the pavement in dispute was public property and for the principal share of the argument. Finally Mr. Dougherty said, who had been out on a bicycle ride and knew nothing of the argument which had resulted, to have a light and he and Mr Dougherty engaged in a little argument in which the latter gentleman gave some of the gentlemen credit for "less sense than they were in a wild."

Finally the telephone gang drove away and Mr. Dougherty placed a large box decorated with two American flags over the proposed site of the pole.

At the Stallsmith news stand work is breaking for the erection of a new store room and the workmen have started last builded after a few strokes had been taken.

RAYMOND WAS FINE PITCHER

When in Condition Eccentric Twirler Could Stand Any Amount of Hard Work, Says Baker.

With the passing of Arthur L. Raymond or "Rugs" Raymond, as he was familiarly known to about every fan in the country, one of the most eccentric characters in base-ball's history dropped out of life's game. Raymond, like that other eccentric pitcher, Rube Waddell, was one of the greatest pitchers in the country, but refused to keep himself in condition The former Gettysburg star was found dead in bed in a Chicago hotel.

Raymond was a wonderful pitcher when in condition and could stand any amount of hard work. He was lately ranked with Grimsley, Alexander, Rudolph and other pitching stars of the National League. He broke into the game in Rockford, Ill. He then joined the Atlanta Southern league club where the eccentric pitcher made a record for himself by winning and losing but five of them. Baseball people in the American and National league soon learned of Raymond's wonderful pitching in 1914. Raymond was secured by the St. Louis Cardinals, and he completed with that team until 1908, when Manager Mc Graw pulled off a big baseball deal, trades in baseball history.

Raymond and Jesse Murray, of the St. Louis club, and Schiel, of the Cincinnati club, were secured by McGraw in trade for Roger Bresnahan, Kargan and Fromme, two pitchers, were figured in the trade. They went to the Cardinals and Schiel is now manager of the St. Louis Cardinals. His eccentricities at times caused him to be dropped from the team's roster as hopeless, and then he would come back started his life of unceasing dissipation that was ended the other day in a Chicago hotel.

LETTER "CAME BACK"

AND THE QUESTION IS, WHERE HAD IT BEEN!

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett tells a true story which she calls "The Mystery of My Life." And truly it is a mystifying occurrence.

It was some time ago, while she was in London, that Mrs. Burnett had dined a friend were spending a quiet evening by the fire, chatting, reading. Mrs. Burnett's friend, by accident, let throughout the event in an armchair by the fire, at the left hand of her place until all was over, so that, as in the case of conjurers, the audience have been "no deception" on her part.

Mrs. Burnett went in the course of the evening to her desk and wrote a letter. She sealed, folded, directed, sealed and stamped it, and stood it up against a silver cigarette box on the centre table. Then she arose to go and sit by the fire.

Presently, wishing the letter posted, she started to take it and stepped forward to do so. She looked for it on the centre table, and the letter was not there. She looked all over the table in vain. She rushed her eyes and looked again. She knew she had left it there. Then she spied the silver cigarette box, but it was not there. No one had entered the room, so one had let it; her friend had not moved. Nowhere by the fire.

Mrs. Burnett said to herself: "I have conscientious eye's eyes are bold. A thing must be where I can see it bright in the face and not be seen. It may be, this is a case of supernatural stealing else!" And she began systematically to search about on the tables and chairs, and there is neither to be found. Completely at a loss, Mrs. Burnett strolled about the room to examine other possible surfaces where the letter might have fallen, and then she had unphantasmally and unmetaphisby been put upon the mantelpiece under the cigarette box. She searched on the mantelpiece, but it was not there, and, on the bookcase—no letter. So by process—very formal! Again to the center table for another hunt. Then she ceased her clumsy searching against the silver cigarette box, exactly as she had placed it.

And that such things are possible, and that they happen in such perfectly sane, clear-eyed, level-headed and reliable people as Mrs. Burnett, is perfectly credible. Have we not all had similar experiences? And if they were not possible, whence come the world-old beliefs in "spooks" and "witches," vous apprize, in stves and brownies who play pranks on people and on mortals? Explain it how we may, that is what happened to Mrs. Burnett.

Orchids at Manta.

Very few visitors to the forcing of growing orchids on the window sill, but these can readily be grown in the home with very little trouble. Of course, the flowers in the greenhouse cost less than a dollar a piece and very often more, but the plants are not so very expensive. All that you need is a soup bowl, strewn with a few pieces of coal. Put the plants in this and place the bon in a window where they can get plenty of sunlight. They won't require much attention besides watering, and this needn't be done often, as the glass tops will keep the water from evaporating very rapidly. In winter, though, your little plants will be apt to be locked in some way. The easiest way to do this, if you have a room with electricity, is to run a wire into the box and heat it with an electric light.

Making it Sure.

An aged merchant was very ill. He sent for the family lawyer, and they began the sick man, as the attorney thought, to dictate his will. But the weary word as it was uttered.

"Yes?" answered the lawyer, hastily scribbling.

"All my property and estate to go to my eldest daughter. I wish to do this in the knowledge that the property is secured to her," continued the merchant, with eager excitement.

"Of course—of course!" fussed the attorney.

"Would it be asking too much," whispered the dying man, "to ask that that job about my funeral be

TOWER OF THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING, PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

FROM an architectural viewpoint the dominating feature of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will be the tower of the Administration building. Rising 375 feet in height and the basket on either side by the dome, towers and minarets of eight great exhibit palaces, the huge tower will be at all times the most conspicuous feature of the Exposition City. From San Francisco bay it will appear as the central feature in the great rectangle of exhibit palaces, whose city line will be 1100 feet in height, whose domes will rise 144 feet and whose lesser towers will be 175 feet in height. From after this central group will appear almost as a single palace, two-thirds of a mile long and 1,200 feet in width: nearer at hand it will be found that the exhibit palaces are interspersed with great open courts, each designed by notable groups of American architects. Each court, in turn, will express the highest ideal of the architect, the sculptor, the colorist and the landscape gardener. The palaces will be the loftiest ever constructed; the grouping of huge buildings will give an effect of utmost harmonious massiveness and grandeur. At the base of the tower, which will occupy an acre in extent, will be a huge arcade beneath which will flow a river. The main approach will be from across the grand Court of Honor. This court, which will be 700 by 900 feet in its greatest dimensions, was designed by McKim, Mead & White.

SAYS POLITICAL WAR IS TO GO ON

BUT YET OUT OF DANGER

Bolenne's General Condition, However, Is Considered Serious.

Weather—Will Rains and Orders Quit.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Colonel Roosevelt sustained steadily and the surgeons in attendance expressed the belief that he is upon the high road to recovery, unless complications arise.

All the bulletins issued showed a generally improved physical condition, and in contrast to the clinical reports the temperature and respiration showing little variation and being practically normal.

"The colonel is reacting rapidly to his normal condition," one bulletin says, "and is much pleased with his condition," is the way Chief Surgeon Murphy put it.

If no trace of septic poisoning develops in the next twenty-four hours the doctors say it will be a case of marking time during the tedious period of the wound healing, and that in a week's time at least it will be possible to move the colonel to his home in Oyster Bay. The doctors make the authoritative statement that the latter will be kept in Chicago until the middle of next week.

Mrs. Roosevelt maintained her watch at the bedside of her husband, and established a quiet, smooth running routine, which, it was agreed, was the best thing possible for the colonel. At noon she decreed that no visitors were to see Colonel Roosevelt during the day, but exercise her discretion during the morning.

Although Colonel Roosevelt is already looking forward to the time when he may leave the hospital, the physicians are not permitting his apparent improvement to influence them in making promises.

Campaign activities should not cease because Colonel Roosevelt's attempted assassination, he believes.

Colonel Roosevelt declared:

The following signed statement was issued by Colonel Roosevelt in accordance to what Mr. Bryan said in his speech at Fremont:

"I wish to express my cordial agreement with the sentiments and proper statement of Mr. Bryan at Fremont, Ind., when in arguing for a settlement of the discussion of the issues at stake in the coming election he said:

"The issues of this campaign should not be settled by the shot of an assassin. Neither Colonel Roosevelt nor his friends would like to see the discussion should be turned away from the principles involved. That is to say, if president it should be because of what he has done in the past and what he proposes to do hereafter."

"I wish to point out, however, that neither I nor my friends have asked that the discussion be turned away from the principles involved. On the contrary, we emphatically demand that the discussion be carried on, precisely as if I had not been shot. I shall be sorry if Mr. Wilson does not keep on the stump, and I feel that he owes it to himself and the American people to continue on the stump.

"I wish to make one more comment on Mr. Bryan's statement. It is, of course, perfectly true that in voting for me on special issue, considerations must be paid to what I have done in the past and to what I propose to do hereafter.

"But it seems to me far more important that consideration should be paid to what I did respective party principles for which our cause stands.

"If I had done what the letter would have gone on exactly the same. Governor Hughes, Senator Beveridge, Mr. Straus, Senator Bristow, Miss Jane Addams, Gifford Pinchot, Judge Ben Lindsey, Raymond Robbins, Mr. Perkins and all the hundreds of other men and women now on the stump, are preaching the doctrines that I have been preaching and stand for and support just the same cause. They would have continued the fight in exactly the same way if I had been killed, and they are continuing in just the same way, now that I am for the moment laid up.

"So far as my opponents are concerned, whatever could with truth and propriety have been said against me and my cause before I was shot can with equal truth and equal propriety be said against me now, and it should be as much and no more discussed. I must be said now are merely the things that could with truth have been said before. This is not a contest about any man; it is a contest concerning principles.

"My broken rib healsfast enough to relieve my breathing I hope to be able to make one or two speeches yet on this campaign. In any event, if I am not able to make them, the men I have mentioned and the hundreds like them will be making them, and night to the end of the campaign, and I trust our appearance will be making their mark.

TURKS BEGIN WAR IN THE BALKANS

Declare Hostilities Against Bulgaria and Servia.

GREECE IS NOT MENTIONED

Ottoman Government Takes the Offensive and Orders Armies to Advance on Frontiers.

London, Oct. 18. War became general throughout the Balkan peninsula today, when the Turks declared that they been fighting with Montenegro, and declared themselves at war with Bulgaria, against Servia and Bulgaria, and ordered her armies to advance to their frontiers.

Greece for some reason was not mentioned in the official documents declared to be the Servian and Bulgarian legations at Constantinople, and the Greek minister has not been asked to leave Turkish capital, as were the Servian and Bulgarian ministers, but although the usual formalities have not been observed it is assumed that fighting between the Turkish and Greek armies has already begun on the frontier.

In the declaration of war Turkey declares the blame on Bulgaria and Servia, and says they have forced her to take a decisive step, although she desires the benefits of peace. A note addressed by the Turkish government to the powers, announcing her intentions at Constantinople said that it was impossible to tolerate matters any longer, and that the Porte was there fore compelled to put an end to the audacious of the Bulgarian and Servian legations.

The diplomats were invited to withdraw from Constantinople, and the Turkish ministerpie at the earliest moment. No note was received from Greece, as in consequence of the recent notification to the Porte that Crete was ruled by the Balkan states, which Turkey refused to recognize, the Greek minister with her internal affairs. A recent note from the powers declaring Crete free from Turkish sovereignty, and ordering the withdrawal of the Turkish troops from the island.

Despite the fact that there has been no declaration of war between Turkey and Montenegro, the Turkish official press state that fighting between the Greek army and the Turkish forces has already begun along the frontier have begun. Thus Turkey is forced to fight on three fronts, as Montenegro, from her position, can threaten the Albanian frontier. Besides Servia, Bulgaria and Greece, that has been expected for many days.

An escort of four Greek destroyers convoyed the Greek transports from Salonika, with Greeks and Servians on board, which passed through the Dardanelles to join their regiments in Europe. Another Greek steamer had a miscellaneous cargo of ammunition. The Greek steamer Macedonia from Salonika, and found the four destroyers recently purchased from Chile by Greece, and proceeded to accompany her on her voyage.

Two hundred Arnaut tribesmen were killed in a battle with Servian troops at Kumanovo, near Prisplide, on the northern part of the Sandjak of Novi Bazar, when the Servians attacked, but were repulsed by the Servians.

Boy Found Shot Dead in Woods.

Kingston, Mo., Oct. 18.—After a search party had sought Monday and Tuesday for several boys who had been hunting in the woods near here with a gunshot wound just above the heart, Ralph Ford, fourteen years old, had gone gunning for squirrels, and was found dead at 4 o'clock this afternoon by a searching party. He had been shot at a squirrel and after injuring it quietly dropped to the ground in the thick second growth and while so doing fell, the gun being discharged and the full load entering the lad's body.

TELLS OF PLOT TO CONTROL ELECTION

Tom Lawson Startles Campaign Probers.

Washington, Oct. 18.—"The minister system" issued a despicial plot to control the present presidential election, Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, told the senate campaign contributions committee.

Mr. Lawson was careful to impress upon the committee that he merely is in a "general way," of the effort to collect scheme to nominate and elect a candidate satisfactory to the Republican national committee.

All of his testimony was of matters which he knew in the same "general way," and he became hesitant in some instances when asked to name the men in defining just what he meant by the phrase, with which he preferred practically every statement he made. In the course of the dispute he was finally informed the committee that the examination of J. P. Morgan and other witnesses had been a "joke."

The conspiracy, he said, Wall street interests, of which Mr. Lawson knew in a general way, by which he devised, the defeat of Colonel Roosevelt at the Republican national convention, the nomination of President Taft and the election of Colonel Roosevelt on the campaign as a third party candidate. To this end Mr. Lawson testified. All this without the knowledge or consent of Colonel Roosevelt.

Then, Mr. Lawson knew in a general way, a contribution fund of $1,000,000 had been raised in Wall street to defeat the Democratic candidate at Baltimore, prevent the nomination of any of the candidates before the convention and to name a dark horse set interests in the Republican convention to be named.

He communicated the information to Mr. Bryan at Chicago during the Republican convention, he said, as a result Mr. Wilson was nominated and the scheme failed.

FARMER ETATS SELF TO DEATH

Ruptured Several Organs Gorging Himself on Sausages.

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 18.—John Wilson, a farmer, sixty-five years old, residing at Stetler, literally ate himself to death.

The meal served to him tasting good, he continued to eat until he had swallowed food which would make a meal for four ordinary men. Soon minutes after gorging himself Wilson had over died.

An examination by Coroner Moore showed the rupture of several organs as the result of the big meal. The coroner said that a prominent man whose slowes were more elastic, might have survived the feast.

STATE RESTS IN BECKER CASE

The Defense in Murder Trial Goes Today.

BANK BOOKS EXCLUDED

Court Refused to Allow Prosecution to Show Becker Deposited $60,000 in Bank While Rose Acted as His Collector.

New York, Oct. 18.—The state rested its case against Lieutenant Becker after justice Seabury refused to allow the district attorney to prove that Becker, with other unknown persons made his salary of $2750 a year as a department police department squadron of $40,000 in savings banks during the months that Jacob Rose acted as his collector.

It was the only important adverse ruling the defense has secured since the trial began on Oct. 7. Lieutenant Becker's counsel asked for the court to allow Becker from the first day's session to refuse to object to illicit his case by showing the jury a money record for the murder and showing that it was Becker's fear that Rosenthal's attempt to expose the acts of police and would drive him from the police force, that caused him to plot the murder but justice Goff held that these was no evidence to show that Rosenthal knew that Becker was depositing any money secured by alleged police grafters.

It was true, said Justice Goff, that the affidavit made by Rosenthal a few days before the murder contained a statement that Becker was getting large sums of money, but such a statement, in the opinion of the court, was inadmissible as it was not sworn to by the introduction of such evidence as hearsay testimony.

John F. McIntyre said that Becker intended to testify at the trial, but was allowed to have his way, but that he was not compelled to take the witness stand. The matter is a ticklish one. There was a possibility that if Becker did not testify, the district attorney, privileged on cross-examination, might bring in the bank book, but he could not do so in evidence without the consent of the defendant, unless he chose to bring out other damaging facts.

The prosecution put about forty witnesses on the stand. The defense refused to put on more than a number. Justice Goff has driven the trial for all it is worth, and it is expected that another week will see Becker's fate in the hands of the jury.

After making his successful argument against the admission of the bank book's bank accounts, Mr. McIntyre made two motions which were denied, one to cure the dismissal of the indictment and the other to strike out the charge on the ground that the state had failed to prove the corpus delicti and Becker's connection with the murder. Three motions Justice Goff promptly denied.

SENATOR HEYBURN DIES

Idaho Statesman Had Been Ill For a Month.

Washington, Oct. 18.—United States Senator Weldon B. Heyburn, of Idaho, died in his apartments here at 4:45 o'clock this morning. He was sixty years old and had been in the senate since 1903.

Senator Heyburn was born in Delaware county, Indiana, Dec. 11, 1852. He served were Quakers. He was admitted to the bar in 1876 and in the same year of his appearance in congress he secured a reputation as an orator by his maiden speech.

Vice President Sherman was notified of Senator Heyburn's death and will appoint a committee to attend the funeral, which will be held in Delaware county, Pa.

PHYSICIAN REMOVES MARCONI'S EYE

Inventor Was Transformed With Total Blindness.

Sperin, Italy, Oct. 18.—Guglielmo Marconi's right eye, which was in use of is an automobile accident on Dec. 1, 1911, has been removed.

The consultation of specialists have resulted in the decision that the removal of the eye was indispensable, as the famous wireless inventor was threatened with total blindness.

Professor Parlee, the celebrated oculist of the University of Turin, was announced in hot haste, and he performed the operation, which, it is said, was successful.

Signor Marconi stood the very pain ful operation without flinching. His wife, who was present, and his children, his sister-in-law and a friend, the Marquis Solari, were present during the operation. Signor Marconi's condition is satisfactory.

A Smart Official.

The French director of posts has turned a patriotic eye at the direction of the telegraph and telephone girls in official circles and great department stores that the girls employed by the state must remain at home or return to their homes after housekeeping groups. These girls, it is said, are trained to be good housewives and can easily live in a wholesome way. But they are not trained to dress instead of in food and so are not fitted to marry on the salaries which a sentimental public years ago insisted was sufficient for girls who are overworked and so makes trouble for the department.

SAY PATENT MEDICINES ARE NOT NECESSARY

Many people believe that patent medicines are necessary to health. This is a mistake. Most of the ailments to which we are subject are the result of careless living, and can be overcome by proper attention to diet and the regular habit of living. Keep your bowels open, your kidneys active, your liver working properly, your stomach sweet, your blood pure, and you will have no need for patent medicines. When you are constipated, bilious, have a headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, sick headache, backache, kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness, or any of the symptoms of a run down system, you can find relief in
